Cherub is quite a shy and nervous girl, which is understandable considering people have not always been kind to her, which has resulted in her having to have an eye removed.

Cherub loves her home comforts and spends a lot of time snuggled up in bed. She enjoys being stroked and will roll around her bed in circles on her side, which is quite frankly adorable. Even though she enjoys being stroked she will tell you when she has had enough and sometimes she prefers not to be bothered at all.

Cherub would be most happy with a quiet home, where she can learn to gain trust in people and have quiet areas of her own to relax. She could live with mature children over the age of 15, will need to be the only animal in the home and for any men in the household to be patient and understanding that she will need extra time to trust you.
