Jennifur and Jessica, were brought to the Centre for rehoming, when the child they lived with became allergic to them. At first when they came into the Centre, they were both a little timid and wondering why they had been brought here, they were really quite upset. Now that they have settled in, you can see that they are two very affectionate and loving cats, who just want to be loved and cared for. Jennifur and Jessica deserve to have the best of homes after having their world turned upside down.
